CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

This chapter provides the methodological aspect of the research. It covers the statement of problems, research method, and research procedure.

3.1 Research objectives

The study was attempted to investigate how television advertisements are represented masculinity. For that reason, this study was intended to investigate:

- 1. Masculinity that is represented in Djarum Super television advertisement.
- 2. The differences between masculinity that are represented in *Djarum*Super television advertisements and masculinity that is represented nowadays.

3.2 Research Procedures

This study used a semiotic theory about the orders of signification proposed by Barthes (1957). According to Barthes (1957), there are three orders of signification: denotation, connotation, (ideology). and myth Denotation connotation were used to analyze how masculinity is represented in Djarum Super television advertisements. Meanwhile, myth was used to reveal the differences between how masculinity represents in Djarum Super television advertisements and how masculinity represents nowadays. In addition, this study used some theories from other theorists to reveal connotative meanings of the visual elements of television advertisements, for example, connotation in fashion and appearance proposed by Barnard (2006), connotation in techniques of video shooting and editing proposed by Selby and Coedery (1995), and connotation of color proposed by Wilfred (1962).

3.3 Research method

The method that was used in undertaking this research is a descriptive qualitative approach. A qualitative method is the method which is "interpretative and subjective" (Belk, 2006, p. 3). The qualitative method stresses on qualities not entities (Denzin& Lincoln, 2005). Thus, it is also committed to a deep understanding of particular phenomenon (Gay et al., 2006). Meanwhile, the descriptive method is an investigation that attempts to describe and examine the particular phenomena and current situation (Travers, 1978, cited in Sevilla et al., 1992).

Therefore, the qualitative descriptive method is an appropriate method for this study because this study aims to analyze, describe and interpret the representation of masculinity in Djarum Super television advertisements. In addition, a deep investigation on the data selected was conducted, so that method is appropriate to be used in this study.
