The first education obtained by a hearing impaired child is an informal education inside his/her family where the parents hold an important role on it. Parents play part as a mentor as well as an educator which certainly has rules or a specific guidelines in terms of teaching their child based on their applied parenting patterns. The type of parenting which applied inside the family is highly affecting on the deaf children's development, and also become one of the major factors for them to reach their achievement. Hearing impaired children possess a specific obstacle which constantly influence their live aspects are yet still able to success and up to par with the normal ones. The purpose of this research is to determine the parenting style which has been applied to the high-schived deaf children. The approach being used in this research is by a qualitative approach with a descriptive method. The research subjects are the parents from 3 different high achieving students at SLB X. This research shows that these demandingness (parents expectations/desires to the children), accepting (parents acceptance of children opinions) and responsiveness (parents response to children's achievements) which are referring to a democratic parenting, combined with a controlling (parents discipline control for the children) aspect based on an authoritarian style, are the most suitable parenting pattern to be applied on and highly affecting for hearing impaired children development, especially in terms of supporting the children process to reach achievement as shown from those 3 different high achieved students. The parenting style which applied by RA's parents is more democratize-authoritarian, where implementing a low demandingness but with a higher degree of controlling, accepting and responsiveness. The second subject, SDJ's parents, are fall into the type of authority-democratic, shown by implementing a high practice on every aspects mention above. The last subject, which is ESC's parent, is classified as permissive-democratic, where several aspects such as: demandingness, controlling, and responsiveness are considered low, yet focusing on a high accepting aspect.
