

INVESTIGATING ENGLISH TEACHERS' BELIEFS ABOUT AND ATTITUDES TOWARDS STUDENTS' NEEDS

A Case Study at One of the Vocational Schools in Bandung

A Research Paper

submitted in a partial fulfillment of the requirements for Bachelor degree in English Education

Ginanjari Putu Wijaya

1103650

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH EDUCATION
FACULTY OF LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE EDUCATION
UNIVERSITAS PENDIDIKAN INDONESIA

2017

STATEMENT OF AUTHORIZATION

I hereby certify that this research paper entitled “Investigating English Teachers’ Beliefs about and Attitudes towards Students’ Needs” is truly my own work, with a quantity of statements, ideas, and theories being intentionally and properly referenced from various sources of works for the sole purpose of supporting and completing the research. This paper contains no material which has been submitted for the award of any other degree in any university or institution except where due references are used in the present research paper.

Bandung, September 2017.

Ginanjari Putu Wijaya

PAGE OF APPROVAL

Investigating English Teachers' Beliefs about and Attitudes towards Students' Needs: A Case Study in One of the Vocational Schools in Bandung

A research paper by
Ginanjari Putu Wijaya
1103650

Approved by

Supervisor

Gin Gin Gustine, M.Pd., Ph.D.
NIP: 197608102001122001

Head of the Department of English Education
Faculty of Language and literature Education
Indonesia University of Education

Dr. Rd. Safrina Noorman, M. A.
NIP. 196207291987032003

PREFACE

Far from the purest worthiness, close to the roughest imperfectness, the author simply raises his awareness to The Source of all inspirations and assurances. The paper in the readers hands right now is one of the examples of His blessings, and is the conclusion of one of the author's journeys as a student, though not as a man seeking for knowledge. It is submitted to the English Education Department of Indonesia University of Education as a partial requirement for bachelor degree in English education, and aims to investigate English teachers' beliefs and attitudes towards students' needs.

Hopefully, the result of the research proves itself to be a meaningful addition to the literature of the quality of English teaching and learning in the author's nation, with teachers' perspective at the center of the discussion. Moreover, every part of what is presented in the research paper is expected to be useful in one way or another to the next generations of scholars walking down the thorny roads of knowledge and truth. At the very least, the existence of this paper can be a proof that anyone can do it if they just do it.

With all that being said, the author will always refer back to the first line of this passage above, that the author is only a man still far from perfections, and that truly reflects on the author's research and this paper. Therefore, any constructive criticisms, comments, or suggestions are gratefully welcomed and acknowledged as the windows of discussions among those who long for wisdom of life.

Bandung, September 2017.

Ginanjari Putu Wijaya

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the name of the Origin of all origins, by all His mercy and blessings, the completion of my final mission as a student has finally come to an ending. With such a victory in hand, I can only be more humble about it, for I have come this far not all by my power. Thus, I address my highest appreciation to these heroes:

1. My supervisor, Mrs. Gin Gin Gustine, M.Pd., Ph.D, for giving her guidance, motivation, feedback, and suggestion to me with patience in the process of my research and of writing the research paper;
2. The head of English Education Department, Prof. Dr. Didi Suherdi, M.Ed., who had allowed this paper to be accepted as part of the university's and the department's treasured document;
3. My beloved parents and family who have been unbelievably supporting me with prayers, love, trust, attention, motivation, and everything else without ever demanding of anything in return except for my well-being and success in life;
4. My partner in battle and crime, Panji Ginanjar Pratama, who came to my aide during my days fighting against the obstacles of my research with his bike and his collection of entertainment literature works;
5. Two of my associates from the English Department batch 2012, Fina Kamilah and Fachry Ali Wibowo, who had suggested some of the most brilliant suggestions, given supports, and provided important information for the completion of this research;
6. The examiners team, Mrs. Rojab Siti Rodliyah, S.Pd., M.Pd., Mr. Muhammad Handi Gunawan, M.Pd., and Dr. Odo Fadloeli, M.A., who had examined my research presentation, and then given useful feedbacks for my research paper and for doing research in general;

7. My friends who have upgraded life into another level such as marriage and careers, thus burning my fuel of determination to catch up with them as soon as possible;
8. All of my friends and colleagues in college, especially those from class English Education B whose existence keeps reminding me of how much I love my department for all of the memories I shared with them, and strangely also how much I hate it for being a place where I once kept staying still while watching the back of my friends' leaving it one by one;
9. All of my lecturers in the English Education Department who had given me knowledge and encouragement during college days;
10. All the staffs of the English Education Department specifically and of my university generally for providing helpful academic and administration services in my campus, and even beyond in some special cases;
11. The participants of my research who had dedicated a certain portion of their life to the completion of my research;
12. My cousin's husband, Peter Bernard Meredith, who willingly offers his help to proofread my research paper;
13. Any other people whose contributions mean so much to me but whom I cannot mention their names one by one. May God bless them in all eternity.