REFERENCES

Bamba, S. (2012). Seeking effective approaches to teaching large EFL classes in Ivory Coast. School of graduate studies and research (MA Thesis). Indiana University of Pennsylvania. USA.

Clare M McAlister, C. (2009). Is cooperative learning an appropriate pedagogy to support the four capacities of curriculum for excellence? M. Phil thesis. Glasgow University, Department of Educational Studies.

Gibbs, G. (2014). Class size matters. SEDA (Staff and Educational Development Association) UK.

Iipinge, M. S. (2013). Challenges of large class teaching at the university: implications for continuous staff development activities. A conference paper, 105-120.

Prastyo, Y. D. (2014). Is cooperative learning appropriate instructional methodology to support the implementation of curriculum 2013 in Indonesia?: theoretical and cultural analysis. A paper presented at the second international conference on education and language (2nd ICEL) 2014. Bandar Lampung University (UBL), Indonesia. ISSN 2303-1417

Ransdell, M. (2005). The lure of lectures vs. the call of cooperative learning in college classrooms, University of Memphis.

Ruangsung, L. (2014). Implementing cooperative learning to enhance oral communication skills in English for tourism program: A case study of Thai students, Schools of Liberal Arts, Walailak University, Thailand.

