PREFACE

Bismillahirrahmanirrahiim. All praises are due to Allah SWT, the Almighty of the worlds, who entrusted me to finish this research paper entitled “YouTube Headlines as Copywriting: An Interpersonal Meaning Analysis of ||Superwoman||’s”. This research has been written to be submitted to the English Language and Literature of FPBS UPI Bandung as partial fulfillment of the requirements for Sarjana Sastra degree.

This research paper aims to seek the interpersonal meaning and headline types in the selected headlines of ||Superwoman|| YouTube channel by employing the theoretical frameworks of Halliday’s (1994) interpersonal meaning and Maslen’s (2010) headline types. It focuses on analyzing how the speech functions and headline types could convey meanings and affect numbers of views.

Having put some endeavor in it, this study is believed to be far from perfect. However, the writer hopes that this study can give contribution to the development of studies in the field of Systemic Functional Linguistics and Copywriting.

ABSTRACT

YouTube is one of the most influential video-based platforms nowadays. This platform has become the source of living for many people, especially youth. Apparently, one of the considerations for people to click a video on YouTube is its attractive headline. Therefore, this study aims to investigate the interpersonal meaning of the headlines through the use of speech function and its typicality, to discover the types of headlines used in ||Superwoman|| YouTube channel, and to find out the realization of interpersonal meaning in different headline types. This study employs a qualitative descriptive design with the help of simple descriptive statistics. The data include 240 headlines of the highest, in-between, and the lowest views videos collected from ||Superwoman|| YouTube channel. These headlines are categorized based on the speech function and its typicality proposed by Halliday (1994) to see the realization of interpersonal meaning. The data are also classified by using the theory of headline types by Maslen (2010). It is found that there are three initiating speech functions realized in the headlines: statement, command, and question. The dominant speech function is statement which is realized typically in a declarative mood. It also shows that the predominant type of headline is arousing curiosity as it gains the highest number of views. Lastly, this study discovers that statement that arouses curiosity is the most desirable type of headline. The findings indicate equal status between the YouTuber and the viewers through the typical realization of statement, and also signify that viewers are most likely to click a video with a headline that arouses their curiosity. Consequently, the videos can get vast numbers of viewers.

Keywords: interpersonal meaning; speech function; typicality; headline types.
