

CHAPTER III

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

3.1 CONCLUSIONS

After the data had been analyzed, it can be concluded that there were six types of translation procedure which were found in the translation of two English song lyrics in Hot Chord monthly magazine. Those procedures were Literal, Transference, Modulation, Reduction, Addition, and Couplets. The most common translation procedure that was used in those Indonesian translations of English song lyrics in Hot Chord monthly magazine was Literal translation with a total number 21. The total number of all translation procedures that were used in those lyrics was 40. Therefore, more than a half of all translation procedures that were applied in those translations were Literal Translation.

3.2 SUGGESTIONS

The following suggestions are suggested by the writer after analyzing the data:

A translator must have certain knowledge in doing translation. These consist of the methods and the procedures of translation and all the matters that are related to translation.

A translator must be able to get into the taste of the song. In addition, the translator must have certain knowledge about music too. It would be an extra point if the translator also has the ability in writing a song. It will be a good help too if the translator could master both translation and songwriting skills to translate a song.

The use of song translation can be applied as an object material for students and teachers in learning and teaching translation.
